TESTIMONIALS

The Contest Queen Has Taught Others How to Win Over $1 Million in Prizes!

Wendy Won a House

“I just wanted to follow-up on my email to you. You may remember I qualified on the radio with two local radio stations for a chance to win a house. 700 contestants, over approximately four months qualified for a chance to turn a key to see if it opened the front door. On May 8th, we attended the Gala Party, where upon entry you deposited your ballot with the assigned number into a drum. Throughout the evening there were thirty numbers selected. Mine came up in the second to last group of five. All thirty of us came to stage where thirty actual keys were in a fish bowl. You would pick a key from the bowl and try to open the door. Twenty-one people before me were unsuccessful. I chose the key that opened the door to a $250,000.00 home.

Two days prior to this event you sent me the link to Helene Hadsell, I listened ... I SELECTED, PROJECTED, EXPECTED and COLLECTED. Is it a coincidence? This is my biggest win so far. Like the words in Elton Johns' song SOMEONE SAVED MY LIFE TONIGHT. I am on disability and with my husband out of work, we just had signed the papers to re-mortgage our current home to pay off debts. We were able to cancel the re-mortgage because of this wonderful event, and that is my story. THANK YOU!”

Delaney Won a Ferrari

“I want to thank Carolyn Wilman (or @ContestQueen on Twitter) as she has a great website, Contest Queen.

TESTIMONIALS

It's sort of because of her that I started entering sweeps as well as blog giveaways because she has won quite a few and she has tips on bettering your odds. Well, dang if she wasn't right!"

Nicole Won a Car

"I was reading your newsletter on Monday, May 7th and I took note and wrote down on a sticky your saying "I am Lucky, I am a Winner, I am a Grand Prize Magnet". I placed it beside my computer to bring luck. I also got your book for a Christmas gift.

Around 6:30 p.m. that night, I got THE call and it was Angela from Treehouse TV. I was so excited since I was a potential winner of the grand prize - A Pontiac Montana SV6 loaded with toys! So amazing it's a $30,000 prize!! I wanted to put the phone down and start screaming but my husband kept on trying to calm me down.

I am going to Pontiac Mills in Oshawa this Saturday and they are going to do a presentation at 11:00 a.m. with Dora and Sponge Bob present for this event. Thanks Carolyn!"

Carolyn is a Winner!

"I attended the seminar and it was simply amazing. I had no idea how much information one could learn. You really do need an entire day to go through so many aspects including how winning contests can liven up your life and take you on many new adventures! I learned so much about the tools one can use today.

TESTIMONIALS

There is a community of "contestors" who are enthusiastic and always having fun. The seminar was only 2 weeks ago and today I won my 1st contest!"

—Carolyn in Ottawa, ON

Sandra & Michael won a Trip to Outer Space

"We won $80,000! Yes, that's not a typo. We won the grand prize from the Proctor and Gamble Gillette Hitch a Ride to Outer Space Contest. We had the choice of a flight to outer space including the 3-4 days of training in Virginia to be weightless for 3-4 minutes or the cash. We took the cash!!

We scrambled to get the forms signed and sent (including a medical). A couple months later we got the cheque in the mail. WOW! We paid down our mortgage, bought a car and are having our bathroom renovated as we speak.

Thanks for all your help. I bought your book and have done pretty much everything you wrote about. I entered my name and my husband in the "single" contests and his name came up. I enter contests daily and your book has helped me organize things so well. I share my knowledge with anyone who wants to know. Being a stay at home mom and loving the Internet, it's the best hobby out there - totally free and totally fun, don't you think? It's like Christmas every time I win. Who knows what will be next?!"

—Sandra & Michael in Thorndale, ON

FOREWORD

I've always been a fan of riddles and logic puzzles. Here's one for you: What do a Rolling Stones concert in Berlin, a year's supply of ice cream, an electric guitar, a Caribbean cruise, a Diet Coke commercial, throwing the first pitch at an LA Dodgers game, a big screen television and cash from TV's "Wheel of Fortune" all have in common? Any guesses? Well, they're just a few of the more than 500 prizes I have won by entering sweepstakes and contests, which ultimately led to the media crowning me "The Sweepstakes King."

I know you're hungry to be a winner of sweepstakes and contests since you picked up this new edition from Carolyn Wilman, The Contest Queen. Let's get right to it, without delay! Here's the winning recipe to winning and I mean winning Big! Drum roll, please! Take equal parts of The Sweepstakes King and The Contest Queen, mix in a dash of persistence and patience, stir until well blended. And what do you get? The delicious, fulfilling and rewarding opportunity to increase your odds of winning cars, cash, vacations, TV's, computers and a limitless bevy of tasty prizes. Do you notice what's missing from this recipe? That would be luck, because, simply, no luck is required to be a consistent winner of sweepstakes and contests. Have I increased your appetite to be a winner? Well, Carolyn's new book will help you build a buffet of prizes that are sure to satisfy.

FOREWORD

Before I became known as The Sweepstakes King, I was hooked on watching TV game shows. As a teenager, growing up in Florida, I fantasized that one day I'd be a real game show contestant and win a cavalcade of cash and prizes. After graduating from The University of Denver, I pounced on my childhood dream, drove to Hollywood and within a week I was selected to be a contestant on "Match Game," winning $6,000! Immediately, I wanted to audition for other game shows, but quickly learned of legal restrictions at the time, limiting individuals to only one game show appearance per year. At this point, I was already addicted to winning, so I immediately jumped in haphazardly entering numerous sweepstakes and contests. Sadly, despite my exhaustive efforts, I ended up empty handed and frustrated. Of course, I quickly attributed my lack of wins to not being lucky and basically threw in the towel.

Then, I took a breath and thought, maybe I could, through trial and error, devise a system for tipping the odds in my favor and actually start winning. Amazingly, things began to change rapidly. The first sweepstakes I applied my plan of attack resulted in me winning 3 color TV's, cash and an all-expense paid trip to the Caribbean, all from a single store promotion. From then on, it felt like the prize flood gates opened, and my rapid accumulation of prizes led to me writing my first how to book on winning.

FOREWORD

I have shared my secrets for winning on many TV shows including ABC's "The View", CNN, The Howard Stern Show and "The Maury Povich Show." My latest best-selling book How to Win Lotteries, Sweepstakes, and Contests in the 21st Century continues to educate and inspire people of all ages to join in the joy and excitement of this wonderful, rewarding hobby.

In addition to the prizes, entering sweepstakes and contests opens a wealth of experiences and friendships, including my collaboration with Carolyn Wilman. Over the years we have shared fun stories and have swapped winning ideas. I had a blast being a guest on her online radio show. Carolyn truly is The Queen of Contests and I'm honored that she is sharing some of my winning ways in her new book.

Other lasting friendships developed after winning a Diet Coke Caribbean cruise, which included winners from across America. Part of the prize was all of us starring in a commercial filmed aboard the cruise. Sometimes a souvenir from a win will stick with me for a long time, like the couple extra pounds I carry as a result of recently winning a year's supply of Ben and Jerry's ice cream.

FOREWORD

I can't think of any other hobby that can potentially add riches to your life, while enriching your journey along the way. So, let it be known that the Sweepstakes King and the Contest Queen make a royal proclamation, for you to go forth, enter, have fun and win! Now you are well on the way to securing your own keys to the contest kingdom!

INTRODUCTION

“Give luck a chance to happen.”

Tom Kite

I love entering contest and sweepstakes. I get such a thrill out of finding new ones and reading about all the different prizes that I could win, I get butterflies in my stomach. I daydream about all the various trips I could take, the cars I could drive, or what I would spend the cash on. I love getting notified I won a prize. I get all bubbly inside and I grin from ear to ear for hours. I am passionate about sweeping.

HOW WINNING CHANGED MY LIFE

I have good reason to feel this way. Sweeping has actually changed the course of my life. Winning prizes back in 1991 led to going on a trip to Barbados with my mom... and to the first date I had with my ex-husband, Craig.

It was early December 1990 and a popular Toronto radio station was broadcasting their morning show for a week in a large downtown department store window. I worked in a nearby office tower and every day I would stop by to watch and listen. One morning, they were giving away a prize pack that included tickets to the Ice Capades and a gift certificate for a trendy hair salon, to the first person that could show them a photo of children in their family; I whipped open my wallet and flashed the photo of my little cousins - winning the prize pack.

My mom had been home with the flu, so when I got home I gave her the gift certificate to the hair salon. We decided that when she felt better we would spend the day together; going to the salon, having lunch and Christmas shopping downtown.

INTRODUCTION

The restaurant we had lunch at that day was giving away a trip to Barbados. As we left the restaurant, I realized I forgot to get the entry forms. I made Mom wait as I ran back inside. When I returned I told her I would fill the forms out later, since the restaurant was close to my office. I said, “If I win I’ll take you and if you win you’ll take me!”

On December 24th, we were all at home wrapping gifts in the living room when the phone rang. Mom went into the kitchen to answer the call. I could only hear her side of the conversation. The woman identified herself and stated my mom may have won a trip. Mom really doesn’t like telemarketers and couldn’t figure out what was going on, but since it was Christmas she decided not to hang up right away. The woman asked my mom; “Where is Barbados?” My Mom nearly said she didn’t know. Instead, she said: “In the Caribbean.” She was told she did in fact win the trip and the travel agency would contact her in January to make all the arrangements. My Mom was confused and asked, “How did I win this trip?” I heard that and screamed, “We won! We won!” The woman asked her, “Didn’t you fill out a sweepstakes entry form?” My mom said, “I think one of my kids entered me,” as I jumped up and down around her.

NOTE: In Canada, we are notified we are a “potential” winner and must correctly answer a Skill Testing Question before we are declared the “official” winner. (See chapter, You’re a Winner!)

TIP: Remember to tell your friends and family when you have entered them in sweepstakes. This way they won’t be caught off guard when they are contacted and inadvertently disqualify themselves.

INTRODUCTION

We went the following April. It was really special to spend a whole week alone with my mom—we had the best time and we learned a lot about each other.

I always wanted to win another family trip so that my mom, my daughter and I could go together. November 2005 we won a trip for four to London, England. It was so much fun to go on another vacation with my mom, daughter and then-husband Craig!

TIP: If you wish to take children on the trip, read the rules and check out the destination's website to ensure children are allowed at the resort or hotel. It would be a shame to win a vacation for the family, only to discover that only you and your partner or a friend can go.

That's how I won the trip to Barbados, but I know some of you are wondering about that first date with Craig. Well, remember the four tickets to the Ice Capades I said I won? I gave away one set to a girlfriend in my office. Then I started inviting friends to see who would like to go with me. I must have invited thirty people—no one wanted to go. One day I was speaking to Craig, who at the time was a business acquaintance, and asked him to go with me. Unlike those thirty other people, he said yes. We had a great time. I thought I had made a new friend; he says it was our first date and I just didn't know it. Although we are no longer together, we had many wonderful adventures and will always be Nicole's parents.

Would we have begun a friendship that led to marriage and building our family had I not won those tickets? Who knows?

INTRODUCTION

I continued to enter sweepstakes sporadically until I read an article that led me to become a “sweeper.” (For complete definitions see the NOTE later in this chapter.)

At the time, I had been unemployed for the longest period I have ever experienced in my professional life. One night I was lying in bed, reading the August 2001 copy of Reader’s Digest, when I came across an article called “Get in the Winner’s Circle! Tips from a contest junkie who’s proven that the best things in life are free” by Barb Taylor. I read and reread that article and as I did, I made a decision—from then on, I would win all the things I wanted in life; like a new car!

Get in the Winner’s Circle!

Tips from a contest junkie who’s proven that the best things in life are free

by Barb Taylor, from Calgary Herald

Vacations in Italy, Hawaii and Mexico. Doing rolls in a stunt plane or being whisked off in a limousine for a night of wining, dining and theatre. Hardly the lifestyle you’d expect for an average-income family of four living in a duplex and driving a rusty old Volvo. Certainly not the lifestyle we envisioned when I left my teaching job 12 years ago to become a stay-at-home mom.

Our magical life began in 1988 after a sleepless night spent attending to our newborn son. The following day I entered a contest sponsored by a local radio station, inviting listeners to send letters to Santa. I pleaded with Santa for one night of uninterrupted sleep. My entry was selected for a one-week trip to Lake Tahoe from radio station CJAY 92. I was hooked.

Now I enter lots of contests, anywhere from 200 to 300 a year. I find out about them while shopping for groceries, listening to the radio, browsing through magazines and regularly perusing a contest newsletter to which I subscribe. Over the years, I've spent three to four hours a week researching new contests and filling out forms.

But the hard work has paid off. I averaged $10,000 in annual winnings; I've won two Dirt Devils through the Safeway Score & Win; and I've gone on a total of 14 major trips thanks to this winning hobby. My writing talents have won me a fair share of prizes as well, everything from a pair of $1,000 earrings for a local magazine's limerick contest to a pair of lift tickets for a Calgary Herald-sponsored Ski Memories contest.

Our winnings have also included clothing, appliances, a backyard barbecue and a patio set. We rarely pay to go to a movie or theatrical production. We frequently dine on gift certificates we have won. The luxuries our income doesn't provide for, my contesting does. Even our children get in on the act and have won a bike, a skateboard and passes to local attractions.

We've watched beautiful sunsets in Maui (courtesy of the Lite 96 jet) and Oahu (thanks to KissFM), walked the Freedom Trail in Boston (Calgary Co-op supermarket and Kraft foods), and even sent my in-laws to Scotland (a cross-Canada random draw from United Distillers). Will it ever end? Not as long as I can fill out an entry for or clip a Universal Product Code, or UPC as it's known (the bar code on products you buy).

INTRODUCTION

Most of the trips I have won fall into the middle “good-and besides it’s free” category. While not all-inclusive, your major costs of airfare and accommodation are covered. You stay in above average accommodation, usually a three-star hotel. You are generally responsible for your own meals, spending money and, occasionally, airport taxes. Trips we’ve won in this category included a one-week trip to San José del Cabo at the tip of Mexico’s Baja peninsula. We enjoyed beautiful, uncrowded beaches, drinkable water, and simple but clean accommodations.

My husband and I experienced our “dream come true” trip courtesy of a local real-estate developer. By dropping off three entry forms at a tour of show homes, we won a one-week trip to Florence, which included stopovers in Paris and London. In Florence, we stayed at the Hotel Brunelleschi in a $650-a-night room that had floor-to-ceiling louvered windows opening onto a tiny flowered courtyard. We had a breathtaking view of the Duomo and the Campanile.

Nowadays, friends often rub my arm for luck before they head off to buy their lottery tickets. I can only shake my head in wonder—I’ve never won anything in a lottery.

So, you must be wondering, how do I do it? In the world of contesting, luck really has nothing to do with it: it all comes down to effort and persistence. For every contest I win, there are a 100 I’ve lost. Here are some suggestions to put the odds in your favor:

INTRODUCTION

DO

Pick free contests. These are usually drawbox contests and can be found in grocery stores and other businesses. Radio and television phone-in contests also cost nothing to enter.

Also, pick the “better odds” contest: Look for contests that have a limited contesting area, offer lots of prizes, require you to “do something” (write a story, solve a puzzle), or that run for a short time span.

Enter often. If it’s a “better odds” contest, I’ll enter five to 20 times. Try to space your entry mailings throughout the length of the contest’s running.

Collect UPCs. Remember that hand-drawn facsimiles are usually accepted in mail-in contests, and believe me, they really work. I’ve won many contests using hand-drawn facsimiles.

Subscribe to a newsletter detailing currently running contests. A good one is the Canadian Contest Newsletter, P.O. Box 776, Stn. U, Etobicoke, Ont. M8Z 5P9*. On the web, you can find them at: www.canadian.contests.com.

INTRODUCTION

DON'T

Don't swipe the entry pads and then stuff the draw box. Getting greedy may get you disqualified for taking unfair advantage.

Don't try to win more than once a month on a given radio station. If you make a nuisance of yourself by trying to win every prize offered, you lower your chances of winning something you really want.

Don't waste money sending in dozens, or hundreds, of entries to a contest that gives away only one prize. This is a quick road to contest burnout.

Don't get scammed! If you've won a contest you haven't entered—beware! If you have to be earning $40,000 a year and are required to attend a sales presentation—think twice!

Don't send money to receive a prize—EVER.

INTRODUCTION

NOTE: See section, Newsletters, to find Canadian and American equivalent contest and sweepstakes newsletters you can subscribe to.

I began my sweeping hobby by surfing the web and discovering an entire community of people who enjoy entering and winning. I joined a few groups, signed up for a couple of newsletters and through trial and error came up with an Internet-based sweepstakes entering system that really works. How do I know my system works? My results, of course—I consistently win 5-15+ sweeps every month, month after month, year after year. I even had a month where I won 83 prizes!

I am so passionate about sweeping and excited about winning, I decided to write this book after the 100th person asked me what is my secret to winning so much. I knew I was onto something with the system I have developed over the past few years and I wanted to share my discoveries, ideas, thoughts and enthusiasm with others.

Then someone asked me, “Why would you give all your secrets away? Wouldn’t teaching others how to be successful sweepers decrease your odds of winning?” It was a tough question...

I was contemplating whether or not I should continue to write the book while driving to a friend’s house. On the way I passed a church. The service announcement board out front said “You Can’t Lose Helping Others Win.”

That clinched it—I thought, “That message is for me! God is telling me it is OK to write the book!” (I really wish I had taken a picture of the sign.)

In this book, I will cover everything from how I began, the ins and outs of the five ways to enter sweepstakes, the Online Winning System I have developed over years of entering (and entering and entering...), stories from fellow sweepers, and what pitfalls to avoid along with many tips and tricks to increase your odds of winning.

INTRODUCTION

In the past, most books on the hobby of sweeping focused on only three methods of entering; in-person, phone-in and mail-in. This left out the field of Internet, and mobile phone contests, both of which are the fastest growing, and easiest way to enter sweepstakes available today. This book focuses on the online method of entering sweepstakes, with an extra focus on social media giveaways; Facebook, Twitter, Pinterest and Instagram. When I began entering sweepstakes on a daily basis there was no single source of sweepstake information in Canada. My goal is to make this book (and the online resources on my website—www.contestqueen.com) a hub of all the sweepstake resources available today in North America. With all this information at your fingertips, you can choose which methods of entry you want to participate in, which groups and forums you may want to join, and what types of sweepstakes you want to enter.

I feel sweeping is one of the best, most rewarding hobbies around and I am sure you will feel the same way after your first win. By reading this book and using the many ideas, tips and tricks included within, you may enjoy the hobby of sweeping as much as I do.

NOTE: Occasionally I use the word contestor in this book. In Canada we use the word contest interchangeably with the word sweepstakes or giveaway even though by definition they are different. (See section, Promotion Types.)

con·testor (kɒn'tɛst'ər)

- n. 1. One who enters contests, sweepstakes, competitions, lotteries and raffles.

NOTE: You may have noticed that I have spelled the word contestor with an OR as opposed to an ER. There is a reason for this. I created the word contestor because the proper definition of a contestor is someone who is protesting or disputing something. We're trying to win cars and big-screen TVs here, not contest a will!

con·testing (kɒn'tɛst')

- v. 1. The act of entering contests.

con·test (kɒn'tɛst')

- n. 1. A struggle for superiority or victory between rivals.
2. A competition, especially one in which entrants perform separately and are rated by judges. See Synonyms at conflict.

con·test·ed, con·test·ing, con·tests
(kən'tɛst') (kɒn'tɛst')

- v. tr. 1. To compete or strive for.
2. To call into question and take an active stand against; dispute or challenge:
contest a will. See Synonyms at oppose.
- v. intr. 1. To struggle or compete; contend:
contested with other bidders for the antique.

INTRODUCTION

Probably from French conteste, from contester, to dispute, from Old French, to call to witness, from Latin contestari : com-, com- + testis, witness; see trei —in Appendix I.

uncomfortable because a professional is an expert in a specific field and is usually well paid for their skill and knowledge. I consider contesting to be a hobby because 1) it is not my occupation, 2) I do it for pleasure, and 3) I certainly could not live off my winnings.

Profession or Hobby?

pro·fes·sion·al (prə-fěsh/ə-nəl)

- adj.
1. a. Of, relating to, engaged in, or suitable for a profession: lawyers, doctors, and other professional people.
 - b. Conforming to the standards of a profession: professional behavior.
 2. Engaging in a given activity as a source of livelihood or as a career: a professional writer.
 3. Performed by persons receiving pay: professional football.
 4. Having or showing great skill; expert: a professional repair job.
- n.
1. A person following a profession, especially a learned profession.
 2. One who earns a living in a given or implied occupation: hired a professional to decorate the house.
 3. A skilled practitioner; an expert.

hob·by (hɒb/ē)

- n. pl. hob·bies An activity or interest pursued outside one's regular occupation and engaged in primarily for pleasure.

There are several terms used globally to describe someone who enters sweepstakes on a regular basis. In Canada we refer to ourselves as contestors because we enter contests. In the United States you refer to yourselves as sweepers because you enter sweepstakes. (If we did that in Canada, people would think we were curlers!) In the United Kingdom and Australia they refer to themselves as competitors because they enter competitions. As Shakespeare said, “A rose by any other name would smell as sweet.” My favorite term to describe my hobby is winner!

THE WINNING STREAK THAT STARTED IT ALL

On a very cold gray day in January, I got the email that every contestor waits for: Congratulations! Your name has been drawn for the Grand Prize, Trip for two to L.A. and dinner with/prepared by Bob Blumer, in Meyer’s “The Surreal Meal” contest, sponsored by Alliance Atlantis Broadcasting Inc. and Meyer Canada Inc. (Along with the trip to Los Angeles, I received an eight piece set of Meyer Anolon cookware and $500 spending money.)

TIP: You can collect frequent flyer points on the flights you have won. Each person must have their own account to maximize the free rewards on top of a win.

Craig and I arranged to take the trip in March. We arrived at the airport on Thursday morning and met our chaperone from Alliance Atlantis. (They need to ensure that their show’s hosts are protected from crazy contestors.) It had been a slow month and I had not won a single thing. We got to L.A. and discovered we had two phone messages; one from my Dad and one from my stepmother. Due to the time difference I could not call until Friday morning. When I called, my stepmother said “Are you sitting down?” I was expecting bad news. She then proceeded to tell me my niece won a trip for four to New York City!

At the beginning of the year I told my stepsister, I was going to start entering my niece and nephew in sweepstakes for children. I thought they would enjoy receiving a neat new toy or DVD in the mail. Little did I know their first win would be “a big one!” (I consider it my win even though I didn’t get the prize because I did the entering.) I was so happy for them since they had never been on a family vacation and they were now going on the trip of a lifetime.

We then proceeded to have an amazing time in Los Angeles. We arrived at Bob’s home in the Hollywood Hills at 8:00pm on Friday evening. He had called me a few weeks before the trip to discuss the menu. We agreed he would make us recipes from his upcoming cookbook Surreal Gourmet Bites: show-stoppers and conversation starters. Bob is also an oenophile so each course was paired with a selection from his extensive private wine collection. He is a wonderful host. Craig and I felt as if we had gone to a friend’s home for dinner. I went out and purchased his new book when it was released so I could continue to enjoy his creations and share them with my family and friends.

win. The sweepstakes prize waiver (also referred to as an affidavit or release form) stated all photos taken during our evening are for personal use only and cannot be published.

We arrived home late Sunday night, tired, happy and feeling lucky that we had such a memorable long weekend. As a contestor you never know how long a dry spell will last or how long a winning streak will continue. At 10:00am Monday morning Craig got a phone call from a local radio station. He won a two-week European holiday—a nine country, fourteen day bus tour. He was shocked.

We went to Europe that September. The trip was with a tour company that specialized in youth groups 18-35. It was fast paced and had a party atmosphere. Being up late every night, getting up early every morning and running around a new city almost daily took its toll on me by the end of the vacation. I came home with a terrible cold, having sadly discovered I wasn't 21 anymore and couldn't keep up the pace I use to. No wonder they say 18-35! It's really tough on those of us over 35.

TIP: If one half of the couple is under 35 and the other is over, the older person can sign a waiver stating you understand the tour is designed for "young" people.

We visited London, Amsterdam, the Rhine Valley, Munich, Innsbruck, Hofgarten, Venice, Rome, Florence, Lucerne, Paris and then back to London. What a vacation! The two surprise bonuses of the tour were arriving in Munich on opening day of Oktoberfest (Who knew Oktoberfest started in September?) and seeing the last 10 minutes of Pope John Paul II's Wednesday morning sermon in Rome.

The highlight of the vacation for me was the evening trip up the Eiffel Tower. I have always wanted to go to Paris, and standing on the upper deck, hugging Craig and looking over the lights of Paris as the tower twinkled was absolutely magical. I felt so lucky!

Our best adventure on the tour was the morning we had a $100 breakfast. It was the second last day of the trip and we were in Paris. After a brief tour of a perfumery, we found ourselves outside of the Opera House. We were hungry and decided to have a bite to eat, and were tired of eating small, quick breakfasts. Looking around we noticed Le Café de la Paix, Paris' most famous restaurant. (Embarrassingly, I did not recognize the name. Craig did recognize the name, remembering many world famous chefs began their careers in that very café.) We entered from the street entrance and I was thinking we might sit outside. Craig and I discussed our eating options with the Maitre D', and decided we would like to have the breakfast buffet.

They sat us inside in a booth opposite the hotel entrance. As we waited for our tea and coffee to arrive we noticed several very well dressed people come into the restaurant.

Then we went to the buffet. I have never seen a buffet like this in my life! There were breads and cheeses from all over the world, twenty different kinds of fresh fruit, four types of fresh fruit juice, and the best scrambled eggs I have ever eaten. They even had an entire section of Japanese specialties. When I came back to the table I said to Craig, "I don't think we want to know what this breakfast is going to cost us.” We sat for an hour relaxing, eating, and deciding what we were going to see that afternoon and soaking in the atmosphere. When the bill arrived it was €64 ($100). It was worth every penny!

Many people ask me when I have time to enter so many sweepstakes. I have to quote R.J. Ward from a sign we found in the Tinker Town Museum just outside Santa Fe, NM.

TIP: Before you begin entering sweepstakes that offer international travel as a prize, ensure all the people travelling with you have a valid passport and visas for some countries. Travel restrictions have become tighter over the past several years, so now many promotions state in the rules you must have a valid passport to enter.
